

Under the Weather: Expats' Satisfaction with German Climate Goes Down the Drain

While expats in Germany enjoy the high quality of the environment, every third respondent is disappointed by the weather.

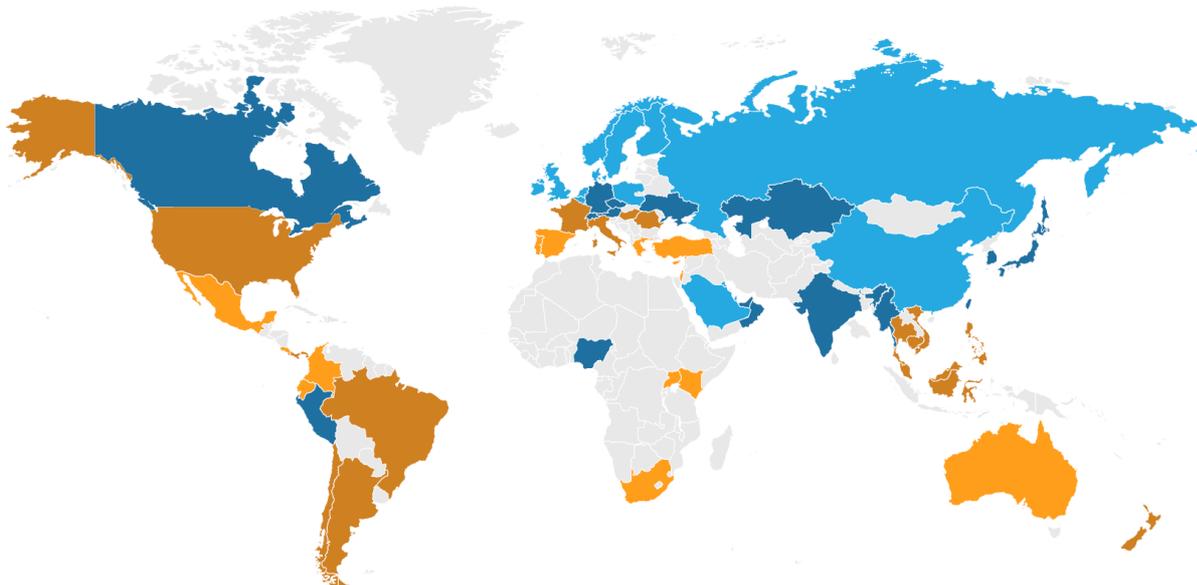

Germany

- Satisfied with weather: 42%
- Happy with life: 77%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 6%

Global Average

- Satisfied with weather: 61%
- Happy with life: 78%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 8%

Munich, 03 May 2018 — With more than one-third of expats being dissatisfied with the local climate and weather (36%), Germany lands on a low 50th rank out of 65 destinations worldwide. In fact, only eight percent of expats give the country's weather the best possible rating, compared to more than one in four expats globally (26%), as the latest Expat Insider survey reveals. Based on the insights of close to 13,000 expats living in 188 countries and territories, InterNations, the world's largest network for people who live and work abroad, has compiled a so-far unpublished ranking of the destinations with the best weather around the world. Expats looking for a sunnier escape should consider moving to Greece, Portugal, Spain, Costa Rica, Uganda, South Africa, Malta, Mexico, Cyprus, or Kenya.

A Breath of Fresh Air — But Bracing Weather

Even before moving to Germany, 33 percent of expats considered the weather to be a potential disadvantage of life abroad, which is 13 percentage points more than the global average (20%). A Chinese expat living in the country finds it “cold most of the time” and is unhappy because “spring and summer only last for about three months”. However, while the sky might often be grey rather than blue, expats in Germany are more than satisfied with the quality of the environment (e.g. quality of the air or water): over nine in ten (92%) rate this factor positively, compared to only 64 percent of expats globally. An Australian living in Germany, for example, points out the “the clean, fresh air and beautiful environment”. Additionally, it seems like expats find plenty to do in Germany — be it outdoors or indoors: more than four in five (83%) are happy with the available leisure activities, ten percentage points more than the global average (73%).

Top 10 Countries for a Sunny Escape

1. Greece

- Satisfied with weather: 96%
- Happy with life: 74%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 15%

Overall, Greece ranks last in the latest Expat Insider survey, yet the country's sunny skies appear to brighten expats' spirits: not a single respondent had anything negative to say about the climate and weather! A British expat states they enjoy “the safe and friendly outdoor lifestyle in beautiful surrounding”. Additionally, more than three-quarters (77%) appreciate the great quality of the environment.

2. Portugal

- Satisfied with weather: 97%
- Happy with life: 89%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 28%

Expats in Portugal can make the most out of the country's excellent weather: they are significantly more likely to work part time (37%) than the global average (17%) and only spend about 33 hours per week at work (vs. 40.7 h globally). In their free time, they seem to have plenty of options to keep themselves busy, as more than nine in ten (92%) are satisfied with the available leisure activities — the highest share within the top 10 countries for a sunny escape.

3. Spain

- Satisfied with weather: 96%
- Happy with life: 89%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 26%

Close to four in five expats living in Spain (79%) are satisfied with the quality of environment such as water and air quality and an even higher share is happy with the available leisure activities (89%). A Canadian expat particularly enjoys “the culture of outdoor enjoyment at the beach, sea and in the mountains”.

4. Costa Rica

- Satisfied with weather: 98%
- Happy with life: 86%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 31%

In addition to the great weather, expats in Costa Rica are satisfied with the quality of the environment (91%) — out of the featured countries, only Portugal (94%) receives better ratings for this factor. Moreover, expats enjoy the country's peacefulness (93%) and the local's friendly attitude (87%) — a US American appreciates the "freedom to live a peaceful, happy life, surrounded by kind people".

5. Uganda

- Satisfied with weather: 93%
- Happy with life: 76%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 2%

Most expats moving to Uganda cite work-related reasons (55%), be it their own or their partner's job, and only 77 percent considered the weather to be a potential benefit prior to their move — this is the smallest share among the top 10 countries for a sunny escape. However, once they arrive, expats enjoy the "wonderful climate on the equator and the amazing people," as a South African expat mentions.

6. South Africa

- Satisfied with weather: 93%
- Happy with life: 74%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 10%

Expat life in South Africa can be worrisome under the sunny skies, as only 38 percent find the country peaceful, which is the lowest share out of the top 10 countries. However, close to three-quarters still state to be generally happy (74% vs. 78% global). Maybe it is the high satisfaction with the available leisure options that makes life in South Africa enjoyable (89%), which is well above the global average (73%).

7. Malta

- Satisfied with weather: 93%
- Happy with life: 88%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 27%

Ranking 2nd out of 65 countries in terms of work-life balance, expats in Malta seem to have lots of time to enjoy the sun. In fact, a Polish expat particularly values the "laid back attitude and weather" in the country. Maybe that is the reason why 37 percent of expats felt at home nearly right away, which is close to twice the global average (19%) and the highest share among the top 10 countries for a sunny escape.

8. Mexico

- Satisfied with weather: 93%
- Happy with life: 89%
- Move for a better quality of life: 14%

Mexico remains a consistent favorite among expats, ranking within the top 5 destinations for expats in general since 2014. In addition to the great weather, 87 percent of expats are happy with the available leisure options. An Irish expat especially likes the "relaxed living, with almost continuous sunshine" — maybe that is one of the reasons why Mexico ranks 1st out of 65 destinations for personal happiness.

9. Cyprus

- Satisfied with weather: 91%
- Happy with life: 78%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 32%

More than one in ten expats (11%) moved to Cyprus to retire, which is the largest share among these ten countries. "Life is generally easy here," states a British expat. In addition to the great weather, the majority (91%) enjoys how peaceful the country is. However, only 64 percent are satisfied with the available leisure activities, compared to 73 percent globally.

10. Kenya

- Satisfied with weather: 91%
- Happy with life: 79%
- Moved for a better quality of life: 1%

Exactly three in five expats (60%) moved to Kenya for work-related reasons (including their partner's job). Working the longest hours out of the top 10 countries (46.5 h/week), it seems like they do not have a lot of time to enjoy the great climate. Additionally, more than two in five (41%) are unsatisfied with the quality of the environment — a US American expat specifically mentions "air pollution" to be an issue.

Anything but Vanilla: Five Must-Try Ice Creams from Across the World

There's nothing better than a cooling ice cream when the temperature starts to rise but after your millionth mint-chocolate-chip this summer, you may want to expand your flavor repertoire. InterNations takes a look at the finest varieties and interesting alternatives eaten across the globe.

About the InterNations Expat Insider 2017 Survey

For its annual Expat Insider survey, InterNations asked about 13,000 expatriates representing 166 nationalities and living in 188 countries or territories to provide information on various aspects of expat life, as well as their gender, age, and nationality. Participants were asked to rate 43 different aspects of life abroad on a scale of one to seven. The rating process emphasized the respondents' personal satisfaction with these aspects and considered both emotional topics as well as more factual aspects with equal weight. The respondents' ratings of the individual factors were then bundled in various combinations for a total of 16 subcategories, and their mean values were used to draw up six topical indices: Quality of Life, Ease of Settling In, Working Abroad, Family Life, Personal Finance, and Cost of Living Index. Except for the latter, all indices were further averaged in order to rank 65 expatriate destinations around the world. In 2017 the top 10 were Bahrain, Costa Rica, Mexico, Taiwan, Portugal, New Zealand, Malta, Colombia, Singapore, and Spain.

For a country to be featured in the indices and consequently in the overall ranking, a sample size of at least 75 survey participants per country was necessary. The only exception to this is the Family Life Index, where a sample size of more than 40 respondents raising children abroad was required. In 2017, 65 and 45 countries respectively met these requirements. However, in most countries the sample size exceeded 100 participants.
